Liberty Retreats: Host structures

For Ohio landowners. One page. Not legal advice. Verify locally before you build.

Memory aid: Guests bring the tent. You bring the pad, flags, ring, extinguisher, and radio. Call your local floodplain, health, building, and zoning offices before anything with walls, pipes, or a roof.

Call before you build

- Township or village zoning (check your deed and local property maps)
- Local health district
- Building department
- Floodplain office
- Fire district (ask your township or emergency management office)

Stay at 1 to 4 guest-owned tent pads. More paid units on one property can trigger state campground rules.

DO: primitive pad

- Clear or gravel pad on high ground (floodplain checked)
- Picnic table; pack-out trash preferred
- Fire ring, ABC extinguisher, flags on an unpowered pole, emergency radio
- Guest-owned recreational tents that leave with the stay
- Small tool shed for tools only, never for sleeping
- Stay quiet; one party per pad

DON'T: unless written local OK and Liberty agrees

- Leave host glamping or safari tents or yurts standing as lodging
- Cabins, tiny homes, or containers for guest sleep
- Plumbing, kitchen, or electric inside a "primitive" shelter
- Farm building exemptions for paying overnight guests
- More than 4 paid pads on one property
- Digging or fill in a mapped flood zone without floodplain sign-off
- Marketing as a hotel, resort, or luxury glamping

ASK FIRST

Seasonal host tent | deck | any small sleeping shelter | overflow cabin | yurt on a deck

Liberty pad checklist

- ■ 1 to 4 pads only
- ■ Guest brings the tent
- ■ Pad floodplain-checked
- ■ Flags, fire ring, extinguisher, radio on every pad
- ■ No host cabin, yurt, or standing glamping tent
- ■ Quiet rules posted

Liberty Retreats. Book Quiet Ohio Dirt. General information only, not legal advice. Each landowner verifies zoning, health, building, floodplain, and fire rules for their own land.